Fresnaye was originally an estate of 200 acres with one farmhouse owned by a French aristocract, known as the garden of Eden it was set in vineyards and orchards. The street names reflect the French heritage to this day. It is situated on the slopes of the Lion's Head mountain on the East between Sea Point and Bantry Bay. The homes at the very top roads are all newly built, contemporary style mansions and is home to our very own president.
